RAILROAD CREDIT

Wider Trading in Bonds-General Business Dull-Banks Add to Cash.

Conclusion of the agreement through which the City of New York is to meet its debts abroad marked a great advance step toward improving our forcing position. How great the aid to cur credit abroad has been may be seen from the large proportion of the city's maturities which are expected to be extended instead of paid. The next thing is to strengthen further the esteem in which our securities are held abroad by convincing the world that the antagonism of our authorities against successful business is coming to an end. If the spirit of President Wilson's letter to railroad men who sought his aid last week will be shown by the state and the nation the good effect should appear when the way is open for European owners to sell us what part they choose of their holdings of our securities.

The representatives of the railroads who went to Washington made clear that they were not asking merely some specific rate increase. The committee spoke for the transportation systems of the whole country, and saked the spoke for the transportation systems of the whole country, and saked the saministration's aid in bringing about better feeling between the roads and public authorities. Here, as well as in Europe, recovery from the waste of war will mean a great strain on our foreign trade must find the strain of the whole country realizes our foreign trade must find the transportation. It now appears probable that the immediate result will be recepting of the advanced rate case and present examine of the increase asked prompt granting of the increase asked for as a measure of relief.

Bond Trading Made Freer. Opening of our Stock Exchange still awaits the turn of events, though last week's successes of the allied armies encouraged talk of preparation for reencouraged talk of preparation for re-suming trading in London after some signal victory. A little easing of re-strictions on selling bonds has been decided on. A considerable investment demand has been accumulating during the idleness of the securities market, but price concessions below the figures of the final day of trading have been of the final day of trading have been maked for. So it was admitted that, as bonds were not subject to the same selling pressure as stocks, being generally held for investment rather than speculation, some range of prices could be conceded. The bond houses are not a stock of the read. to start salesmen out on the road again to drum up business, and are to avoid establishing new quotations that would disturb existing collateral loans.

Closing Cotton Stradeles.

An element of strength has entered into the cotton market through the operations of the joint committee's plan for closing out the heavy straddle differences between this market and Liverpool, as the complications attending these deals have been held in a measure responsible for the delay in reopening the exchange for business. The movement so far has been small, but it is regarded as a start. With the progress of harvesting, the pressure on the banking and storing accommodations of the South are becoming reopening the exchange for business. The movement so far has been small, but it is regarded as a start. With the progress of harvesting, the pressure on the banking and storing accommodations of the South are becoming henvier, and although the various plans for the relief of the planter are giving much hope, there is little doubt that hard work will have to be done to prevent large quantities of "distress cotton" being thrown on an already weakened market.
